SECTION BUILDING A SCHOOL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN:

A. Reflection

Provide a narrative that reflects the committee's thinking on the following questions:

1. What were the positive aspects of previous professional development opportunities in the district or school that should be retained and replicated?
2. How did those opportunities address the needs of staff and enhance student learning?
3. Through previous evaluations of the professional development program, has the school been able to document how professional development is improving teacher practices and student learning? If yes, describe how the task has been accomplished.
4. How has previous professional learning been aligned to the district and school priorities and key initiatives and programs?
5. What challenges has the district or school faced in the past in providing professional development?
6. How will these challenges be addressed in this School Professional Development Plan?

The 2013-2014 professional development programs were scheduled two times during the school year, each day for five hours. The professional development programs were designed to support professional staff as they refined their teaching skills and learned about new developments in the education field.

The School Improvement Committee meets periodically during the school year to articulate and maintain the professional development plans of the district and schools. Analysis of data provided via Teachscape assists the committee in determining UHS's professional development needs.

The desire of the School Improvement Committee in 2013-2014 was to retain and expand the positive professional development opportunities that stimulated the thinking of professional staff and thus, ensure student learning and achievement.

The School Improvement Committee recognized the need to continually strive to provide the best quality of instruction for every student in Union High School. In an effort to meet and deliver effective instruction to every student, School Improvement Committee worked diligently to support topics that were relevant to student learning.

Staff development workshops were largely building-based. Topics for the workshops were in response to the district and building as identified in the building needs assessments. Additional topics included training for professional learning communities, effective co-teaching strategies in inclusive classrooms, and implementing technology into all classrooms.

The programs in 2013-14 provided opportunities for professional staff to develop desirable changes in the delivery of instruction and implement practices for the 21st Century learner.

B. Needs Assessment

Provide the definition for question (1) and then describe the answers to (2) and (3) in narrative form:

1. What is the school's definition of student achievement? Please consider the following questions to guide your discussion: Is it high test scores on standardized tests? Is it improvement on local assessments? Or should the definition include other positive student outcomes such as confidence in academic and social situations, student responsibility for learning, or the ability to apply new skills to real life situations? What changes in student behavior are we trying to create? What will student success look like in our school? This definition should be developed with input from the entire faculty.
2. Include both the school-based performance data as well as other information identified as evidence of professional learning needs of staff. These might include formal and informal surveys of teachers, focus groups with teacher teams, team documentation of goals and outcomes, or other identified needs from other key stakeholders, including staff, students, parents and community members.
3. Provide a brief narrative of how the school committee is using school-based performance and other data to drive the professional development needs in the school. Be specific.

The commonalities of student achievement/learning priorities as defined by Union High School include:

- Students will perform at or above grade level on standardized tests, as well as academic proficiency tests, and will demonstrate mastery of the State curriculum standards for student success.
- Students will be able to learn how to inquire, think critically and gain knowledge, as well as draw conclusions, make informed decisions, and apply knowledge to new situations, thereby creating new knowledge to assist them in becoming lifelong learners. Using this newly-acquired knowledge, students will then be able to assume personal responsibility to participate ethically and productively in our society, while pursuing personal and aesthetic growth.
- The intended goals for the Professional Learning Communities (PLCs) are to create and implement a process for responding when students experience difficulty in learning.

The School Improvement Committee, along with the support of the administration and the Board of Education, is committed to encourage building-based, collaborative workshops and offer more after school opportunities based on the needs of the school based professional development committees.

The data that was used to assess student learning was derived from the assessing midterm exams and quarterly exams. Additionally, performance on the PSSS, and the PSAT and grades 9, 10, & 11 English PARCC. was also analyzed. The identified needs included strategies for improving students' reading and writing skills, accommodating special needs children in the regular education classroom, creating learning centers, using 21st century skills such as technology, and using data analysis to improve instruction. The following has been determined after looking at student performance data:

- Need for more training to use learning activities linked to technology.
- Need for more technology equipment in the school and individual classrooms.
- Behavior modification strategies for classrooms.
- Strategies to effectively implement collaborative teaching.
- Strategies for accommodating the inclusion of special needs children in the regular education classroom.
- More strategies for assisting students to improve their reading and writing skills.
- Allow all staff to participate in vertical articulation meetings.
- Strategies for developing learning centers.
- More strategies on using data analysis to improve student learning.
- Professional training that shows teachers how to develop Student Growth Objectives.
- Training on implementing the components outlined in Danielson's Framework for Teaching.
- Training on utilizing Teachscape including on how to access the training modules and the uploading of artifacts.

The following shows how the school committee is using school based performance and other data to drive professional development in the school:

- Through the use of the Prosper Assessment Program, the staff at UHS has been trained in how to analyze student data in order to identify student strengths and weaknesses.
- Job embedded collaborative workshops on various differentiated strategies will be offered throughout the 2014-2015 school years.
- Professional Learning Committees will submit "Team meeting feedback sheets" once a month to the appropriate supervisor. Information is used to determine PD activities.

C. Professional Development Goals for the School

1. List the school's established student learning goals and other learning needs. These should:
 - be based on school district goals;
 - be aligned to school improvement plans;
 - be based on an analysis of the Needs Assessment Data;

The professional development goals are aligned to coordinate with this effort. Student outcomes are improved when all members of the learning community are provided with staff development that is relevant and collaborative.

Specific recommendations regarding teaching are:

- Increased use of active learning strategies that have been documented to improve student performance
 - Development assessment tools that can provide useful data
 - Improving teachers ability in the area of "questioning and discussion techniques

D. School Professional Development Opportunities

1. Describe the professional development structures and designs in the school. For instance, will professional development be offered for team based learning, online learning, workshops or other venues? Will partnerships be developed with universities, county colleges, and other educational organizations to support adult learning in the schools? Will schools partner grade levels or departments? How will teams look at student work or create common assessments together? How will teams be supported in observing the practices of other team members? How will learning opportunities for teachers address the needs of all student populations (ELL, Bilingual, Special Needs, G and T, etc.)? In this section describe the varieties of contexts in which professional development will be offered rather than a listing of trainings or a catalog of events.
2. What are some of the key NJ Core Curriculum Content Standard areas on which the school will focus their professional development?
3. Indicate the connection between student learning goals and the professional development within the school.
4. How will the school communicate the professional development plan to all staff members?

Professional development in Union School High School is offered in a variety of differentiated formats to suit our own learning needs, styles and profiles as well as to exemplify best practices in teaching both students and adults. We currently offer after school workshops on many subjects, ranging from technology to research-based strategies. Due to the concern of implementing differentiated instruction and tiered lesson planning, we have offered numerous opportunities to hone and develop these skills for teachers in the district. The district has also contracted with outside consultants and experts to assist in the transition of inclusion team-teaching classrooms to assisting teachers with implementing differentiated instruction practices.

The core curriculum content standards and the academic proficiencies which the district will be focusing on deal with improving literacy skills across the curriculum. The students must be able to recognize when information is needed and have the ability to locate, evaluate, and use effectively the needed information. This literacy encompasses visual literacy, media literacy, textual literacy, numerical literacy, technology literacy, and network literacy. This is an important issue in our professional development quest, as we must help our teachers reexamine their own assignments and traditional teaching strategies. Because our world is changing so rapidly, no traditional curriculum and methodology can sufficiently supply students with fact-based learning needed for the challenges they will face. Through carefully designed staff development, we can enable educators to gain concrete examples of how literacy can be integrated into core subjects, while making the teaching and learning of core subjects more relevant to the demands of the 21st century. By utilizing more team based learning, we are hoping to help our schools and teachers reflect and evaluate where they are on the road to becoming a 21st century learning institution.

Future district initiatives targeted for intensive learning will be identified through needs assessments, test scores and state mandates.

The Union High School "School Improvement Committee" is aware of the differing demographics of the district and supports individualized goals for students.

A significant challenge that we are currently facing in our school is selecting the staff development approach that aligns most clearly with the assumptions and beliefs of our staff members and produces measureable results. When everyone is on board, a change in behavior accelerates; however, when these beliefs aligned with a staff development program contradict the long-held beliefs of our participants, this change is difficult. According to research, no single ingredient has greater impact on student achievement than the quality of the teacher in the classroom (Haycock, 1998). We use Haycock's view of effective professional development where teachers are engaged in discussions about what they are teaching, how they are teaching, and about the results they are getting from students, as well as how to improve these results. We are also striving for these conversations to be able to occur during the school day for teachers to meet and examine student work, evaluate it against standards, and determine strategies for getting better results.

The UHS plan will be distributed to all the stakeholders at the beginning of the school year. It will be distributed and discussed at PLC and faculty meetings. It will also be posted on the district website.

SECTION BUILDING A SCHOOL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN:

E. Professional Development Resources

1. Include a description of time allocation and supporting resources needed to meet the professional development goals. Collaborative school teams can indicate how time for professional learning is created. For instance, is time provided for professional learning in interdisciplinary, grade level, or content area collaborative teams and staff meetings? Do teachers use planning time for collaborative professional learning? What resource materials and consultant expertise are provided for professional learning?
2. Identify the resources and structures in place in the school that demonstrate that the school community values and nurtures quality professional development for adult learners. These might include dedicated professional learning days or summer or after school opportunities.

The Union High School professional development will be offered during the 2014-15 school year in a variety of formats. There will be the traditional Opening School Professional Development Day, and several half day workshops. During faculty and department meetings, various PD programs will be offered as well. Course offerings at various local universities, colleges and educational organizations are routinely offered, and staff members are encouraged to participate in order to support their adult learning. Tuition reimbursement has been allotted by the district for continuing education. Mentoring is also offered, which allows the collaboration of veteran teachers with new teachers. Teachers will also be encouraged to participate in appropriate out of district professional development.

Based upon scheduling needs, some staff members will be given the opportunity to collaborate during common prep periods to discuss relevant issues pertaining shared instructional responsibilities. Monthly PLC meetings will be held to support each other in improving areas of student weakness, as well as to share strategies and ideas that have led to student improvement. Co-teaching support model lessons are used during the school day to demonstrate a variety of instructional strategies.

F. Ongoing Assessment and Evaluation of the School Professional Development Plan

1. What knowledge, skills or behaviors will educators learn as a result of the School Professional Development Plan and what evidence will you have to indicate staff has learned new skills?
2. What student data will be used to determine how these knowledge, skills or behaviors impacted student learning?
3. What additional data is needed to support the program evaluation process?
4. How will the School Professional Development Plan encourage job-embedded collaboration and what is the evidence to support this?
5. What data are needed to answer the evaluation questions? School teams should also use existing data from the school district such as student achievement results on standardized tests, but should also think about how to gain input about its relevance to teachers and whether it impacted their practice. For instance, the School Professional Development Committee might consider the following questions:
 - How might you consider holding focus groups to get teacher input on needed professional learning?
 - How might you conduct surveys of staff and stakeholders to get input on opportunities to offer?
 - How will you examine and tabulate individual evaluation forms from specific events or team meetings to determine usefulness of professional learning offered in the past that you might repeat for other staff?

The educators of Union High School will develop a repertoire of effective and research-based teaching strategies created through collaborative efforts. These will include 21st Century skills dealing with technology and those other skills identified by each individual building professional development committee. The school will be able to measure the results of these initiatives through standardized testing results, surveys, academic proficiencies and formative and summative assessments and periodic feedback garnered on the online professional development portal.

Evidence of the aforementioned include teacher lesson plans and formal and informal observations. Teachers are using more formative data analysis to drive instructional practices. Academic proficiency exams at all schools are being used to analyze student learning. Subsequent professional development will continue to be offered as support. Training will continue to be focused on the Danielson Framework for Teaching and instruction on how to develop Student Growth Objectives (SGO).

SECTION SCHOOL PLAN SUMMARY FOR DISTRICT PLAN

Each school is asked to complete a one page summary of key elements of their plan for inclusion in the district plan. Please provide a short narrative description for each of the sections of the plan:

1. Reflection: Identify key elements of previous professional development you will leverage in the new plan.
2. Needs Assessment: Submit the school definition of student achievement. Identify key findings from needs assessments.
3. Professional Development Goals: Identify the professional development goals connected to the student learning goals for the school/district.
4. Professional Development Opportunities: Identify the processes and structures the school will use to provide professional learning opportunities.
5. Professional Development Resources: Identify the resources that will ensure professional learning is ongoing.
6. Evaluation: Identify your goals for evaluation of your professional development in the first year.

Union High School remains committed to building-based, job-embedded professional development throughout the school year to meet the identified needs of our students and staff. Training will be designed to be in-depth and with follow up, to provide teachers with tools to utilize in their classrooms which will enhance student learning. Training for teachers on the Danielson Framework for Teaching and instruction on how to develop the required SGO's will be implemented. Additionally, training will be presented on the implementation of the new teacher evaluation system.

In order for students to achieve, they need to learn how to inquire, think critically and gain knowledge, as well as draw conclusions, make informed decisions, and apply knowledge to new situations, thereby creating new knowledge to assist them in becoming lifelong learners. Using this newly acquired knowledge, students will then be able to assume personal responsibility to participate ethically and productively in our society, while pursuing personal and aesthetic growth. Needs assessments have identified several areas to be addressed through professional development. These areas include providing more time for teachers to evaluate student progress, workshops on how to modify curriculum to meet the needs of students, differentiated instruction, alternative assessments, use of technology in the instructional and evaluative process, behavior management techniques, development of reading, writing and math skills, cooperative learning, and character education.

Our professional development goals are based on the identified needs of our students. It is expected that these needs will evolve as we continue to monitor student performance. Currently identified goals include showing an increase in mathematics and language arts literacy competencies, narrowing the achievement gap, creating behavior plans, implementing a variety of evidence-based instructional strategies in the classroom, and increasing the amount of students that enroll in a post high school educational program.

Union High School will continue to provide professional development opportunities for all staff. Additional courses are offered on a variety of topics through the learning portal. Staff will be encouraged to make use of professional days. Teachers may also continue their education through colleges, universities, and online programs. In addition, opportunities for professional development are offered at faculty and department meetings.
