Osborne	Melissa	Anxiety, ADHD and Anger in the Classroom: 60 Activity-Based Coping Skills to Effectively Manage "Big Feelings"	3/8/2023	Virtual	Managing the emotional climate of your classroom is crucial to learning. When children are struggling to manage anxiety, ADHD and anger, they can't focus on the academic tasks expected of them in a classroom setting. By teaching kids simple, healthy and safe ways to express their emotions and calm their bodies, they will be better able to concentrate on their work during the school day. The positive impact healthy coping skills will have on a child's academic performance is truly transformational. In this seminar, we'll learn how coping skills impact a student's nervous system, and how to use that knowledge to help kids calm their bodies and get ready to learn. Join coping skills expert and experienced school counselor Janine Halloran, LMHC as she shows you coping skills and techniques ideal for a classroom. Walk away with a coping skills toolbox: Deep breathing printables Check in sheets "Anxiety thermometer" Relaxation exercises "What's your play personality?"	147	02/21/2023
